State's Attorney.

Of the State's Attorney which appears here next Tuesday and Wednesday nights, the Kansas City Times says:

A good-sized audience assembled at the opera house last evening to witness the four-act comedy drama of State's Attorney. John Dillon was enthusiastically received, and kept the audience in constant good humor whenever he was on the stage. He looks and acts just as young as he did twenty years ago, and several times during the evening he was the recipient of bouquets. Miss Nellie Walters, as Tacy Bartram, the Quakeress, who is discarded by her father, gave a true representation of the character. She is a sweet little actress and deserves considerable credit. Mrs. Walters has a part which shows in strong contrast with her daughter. Mrs. Walters has a voluptuous figure, a fine stage appearance, and is a captivating lady. Mrs. Walters, as Dida Norwell, the village school teacher, and Idella Macdonnell, as Prude Rollin, the widower's adopted daughter, are as all the others of the company, good.

A Cherokee Remedy.

WHAT A PROMINENT DRUGGIST SAYS.—T. F. Fleming of Augusta, Ga., writes: "When I first heard of your 'Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein, I thought I would order a dozen. In less than a week I ordered a gross, and in less than seven weeks, as your book will show, had ordered seven gross. I only mention to you this fact to show how it sells in this city. As a cough remedy I have never seen its equal. One bottle sold makes a customer of it." Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein for sale by all leading druggists at 25c and $1.00 per bottle.

Manufactured by Walter A. Taylor, Atlanta, Ga., proprietor Taylor's Premium Cologne.

That Town Cow.

Editor Gazette:

I have watched with considerable interest the proceedings in the city council against the "town cow" and have felt some comfort from the appearances of the city fathers at last taking steps to protect those who are endeavoring to beautify not only their own homes but also the entire city. I had proposed keeping silent, but when the town cow will skillfully open my yard gate at night and browse down shrubbery and trees in fifteen minutes that cost me $15 to $20, three or four years ago—and that number of years of care and attention—I confess to you I am inclined to get a little mad. And while I do not believe swearing will hurt the cow any, a few pistol balls will; and I have lately been driven to that last resort, for remonstrances have lost all force.

I noticed in this morning's GAZETTE a call for the friends of the town cow to meet at the court house to-morrow evening to express their opposition, etc., to the ordinance in regard to keeping them from running at large in the city.

I can only speak for myself. I am not authorized to speak for others. Nine out of ten I've heard express themselves in favor of the ordinance. I have a residence lot 100 feet square, on which I have lived the seventh summer. I have paid out over $100 for the shrubbery and trees on the place, and probably expended $150 in hired labor, river soil, etc. I have had hauled up to put around the roots. And three or four times the town cow has gotten into my yard and broken down more in a night than I can replace in five years' time, not counting the expense at all. Remonstrances have effected nothing, because my neighbor had a right to let his cow run in the streets. Complaints have done no good, because I might put more barbed wire on the fence, and chain the gate at the bottom where the cow could not reach it with her horns. I have had this remedy suggested by my neighbor, who keeps a well educated cow, and he forgets or is indifferent to the fact that my family and my friends have to pass through the gate.

I have kept a cow ever since I have been in Fort Worth, save about two years, and I can say from actual experience that this plea to let the cows run in the streets to the annoyance of every one, and the damage of many, is only a delusion. There isn't anything in the streets for them to eat except what they forage from the stores, and I think if the grocers had one of two things to do, to-wit: to be pilfered by the town cow as they have been or to pay for her pasture, they would gladly do the latter, and it would be cheaper for them to do so. There is no such thing as a lawful fence in a city. Fences are seldom broken. Cows learn to work gates open—watch for opportunities to get into the greenest, shadiest, prettiest yards in the city, catch the finest bush about mid-way of it, as you run at her, and runs with it pulled up by the roots. And now probably one man in ten will protect the cow's innocence, and as he hasn't enough in his yard to invite even a cackling goose into it, he will insist that his cow is a public benefaction, and must be allowed to roam the streets, pilfering the grocers and destroying the yards. How many yards can you find in this city where parties have planted trees, and every year the town cow has broken off the tops and branches until nothing is left but ungrainly stumps? Walk along East Weatherford street and you will scarcely see a yard—not one—that has escaped her ravages.

In my opinion, as between the town cow and the house breakers, this city has suffered more loss from the cow, and I hope to see a good straight-out ordinance enforced against all animals running at large in the city, especially the educated, quiet, gentle, good-natured, browsing cow. And when people will find they can have some protection from such depredations, the city will be studded all over it with shade trees and beautiful yards.

There are yards on Lamar avenue that are not only pleasures to the houses but are a great credit to the city. How long would it take one cow to ruin the finest? There is one in my neighborhood that I have seen driven out of at least eleven yards. She has very nearly ruined all of them and the eleven owners can have nothing more in their yards than the owner of that cow has in his until he will be required to keep her up. I think the council has acted slowly and deliberately in the matter, and are not disposed to crawl-fish. Respectfully,

J. C. SCOTT.

December 28, 1883.

Capital Stock.

We have for sale from $10,000 to $25,000 of the capital stock of one of the best cattle ranches in Northwestern Texas.

The party owning the stock would not sell it were it not that he is in need of some funds. The stock is paying well and the ranch is permanently located, and it is run on a very economical basis.

We have just had this stock placed in our hands and we can thoroughly recommend it.

We also offer for sale $15,000 to $20,000 capital stock in two other cattle companies that are in a very healthy condition and have paid handsome profits for a long time.

Persons looking for such investments will do well by calling on us or writing for full particulars.

S. P. C.

The Second Soiree of this Social Organizer a Grand Success.

Last night the second soiree of the S. P. C. club came off at Godwin's hall. It was attended by fully twice as many as the first, not only evidencing an increased interest, but also giving promise of the permanency of the club. There has not been such a brilliant array of the beauty and culture of the city as was to be seen there last night. No one who has traveled could look on without being impressed with the fact that the society of Fort Worth outshines in all respects that of nearly any city in the West or Southwest. The picture was fair to behold as the expansive floor echoed with the musical top of a hundred pair of feet. And when at a late hour the merry couples were seated at the beautifully set tables, which were filled to overflowing with the most appetizing of viands, it was a scene never to be forgotten. Mesdames Ball, Garner and Lake thoroughly demonstrated that as committeewomen they were in the right place. The soiree broke up as all such elegant affairs do, much too soon for the participants, though the small hours had begun to tell their tale at the parting. Below is a list of those in attendance: Mr. and Mrs. Scheuber, Mr. and Mrs. Mabry, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Garner, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Max Elser, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. ## NEW YEAR'S DAY.

Its Observance by the Society People of Fort Worth.

The question is being asked all around now among the ladies: "Are you going to receive on New Year's Day?" The question is variously answered, but the indications are that some of the best ladies of the city will receive. This is a growing custom in good society, and one that serves to keep alive old acquaintanceship as nothing else can. It should be understood that all will receive during the same hours, say from 2 till 5 in the afternoon. In order that all may know who will receive, these ladies having determined to do so will center a favor by sending in to-day to this office their names and residences, and what ladies will assist them in receiving. It is desired to have the list as complete as possible.

College Hill.

Two new dwelling houses, just finished, on College Hill, for sale on reasonable terms. Inquire of A. A. Johnson, at 823 Lamar street.

A Good Day's Work.

The new building association is bound to succeed. Although the meeting for preliminary organization was held only night before last, yesterday evening at dusk the committee appointed to receive subscriptions to the stock reported that about $90,000 out of the $200,000 to be issued had been subscribed. The shares are of $100 each, and no one can take more than twenty shares. Subscription will be paid in monthly installments, small enough for almost any to take stock.

Marriage.

Mr. M. L. Thacker and Mrs. Helen A. Tate, who have recently moved to this city from Hopkinsville, Christian county, Ky., were married on the 26th day of December. The GAZETTE joins the friends they have made since their arrival here in wishing them a future into which naught but happiness shall come.

A Lost Hack and Team.

Night before last a hack and team belonging to Albert Bridges escaped from the driver, D. Massacade, while he had temporarily left them standing on Main street, and no trace of them was found until late yesterday evening, when they were found on the other side of the Trinity river, north-east of the city. Strange to say, nothing was broken about the hack but two spokes in one of the wheels, and the horses were uninjured.

Suit Filed.

R. R. Robinson has brought suit in the district court of Tarrant county for $714 damages to cattle in shipping from Baird to Fort Worth.

Having incorporated my business with a paid-up capital of one hundred thousand dollars, on and after January 2, 1884, it will be known as the W. A. Huffman Implement company. I still own a controlling interest in and will have exclusive management of the new business.

Rosadalis for Rheumatism.

Messrs. H. Peck & Son of Streetsboro, write us, June 5, 1882: "Why do you not advertise Rosadalis for inflammatory rheumatism? It is doing wonders here in curing the disease. Well, we do advertise it to cure rheumatism, as any one can see by reading our circular. It is a splendid blood medicine, and it reaches the very root and seat of disease by being conveyed through the blood. Druggists, leading physicians and citizens of the highest standing unite in commendation of Rosadalis."

Sweet Gum.

When we consider the medical authority of the world recognizing our sweet gum to be the finest stimulating expectorant known, and that the proprietor of "Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein" has the formula of the Cherokee nation of incorporating the sweet gum with the seed of the mullein plant of the old fields—which many of our readers will remember our grandmothers making under the direction of the old family physician for croup, whooping cough and colds—it is no wonder that "Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein" is producing such effective cures in croup, whooping coughs and all bronchial affections. For sale by all leading druggists. Twenty-five cents and one dollar. Manufactured by Walter A. Taylor, Atlanta, Ga., proprietor Taylor's Premium Cologne.
